WHY PARTICIPATE?

If you are looking to improve your knowledge of import or export regulations, network with trade compliance professionals and learn what local companies are doing in the area of international trade compliance, then the Roundtable of Trade Compliance Practitioners may be the group for you.

We are Licensed Customs Brokers, Certified Import and Export Specialists, trade attorneys, employees of importers/exporters and service firms, and faculty at universities in the Kansas City metropolitan area who are involved in import and export regulatory issues. Our focus is to educate the community and provide a network of compliance professionals to collaborate on current hot topics in the trade compliance arena.

We are open to individuals who are currently working in companies that import and/or export, provide import and/or export compliance services, or are studying or teaching in the area of international trade compliance.

This is a great opportunity to benchmark industry, network with professionals in your area. We encourage all participants to engage in the conversation.

POSSIBLE FUTURE TOPICS:

- USMCA after it goes into effect
- Compliance strategies for managing global tariffs
- New EAR rules on exports to China, Russia, and Venezuela entities
- Integrating trade compliance into the strategic and operational dimensions of the company
- Social compliance (reducing carbon footprint, forced labor)

Meeting topics are driven by the members and focus on current topics that are important to the group. Future meetings will be in person when local restrictions on meetings are lifted.
